Opportunities

Registration is now open for the Chem 519-0 Responsible Conduct of Research instructor-led course.

To fulfill the instructor-led component of training, graduate students, postdocs and visiting scholars should register for CHEM 519. The Chemistry Department offers this required course once a year, during the spring quarter. PhD students register for the course through Caesar; postdocs and visiting scholars register through myHR Learn.

Successful completion of BOTH the online and instructor led course is required of all graduate students, postdocs and visiting scholars. Failure to do so may negatively impact your funding.

After you register for the course, you will receive a course invitation from Instructure Canvas notifications@instructure.com. Please accept the invitation, which will allow you to view course materials and communicate with your professor once the course site is published.

Northwestern uses the CITI program for the online course. Graduate students, postdocs and visiting scholars should complete the CITI course, "RCR course for graduate students and postdocs"; undergraduate students should complete the CITI course, "RCR course for undergraduate students". Click here to View registration instructions for the CITI program
